We promote humanity, and a healthy sense of humor, in healthcare.

We met as undergraduates, just two ambitious, fresh-faced kids ready to take on the world and a whopping amount of student loan debt.

With his and her degrees in medicine and psychological and brain sciences from Dartmouth, we've navigated the world of medicine as a doctor, a doctor's spouse, and a cancer and sudden cardiac arrest survivor and co-survivor. It's been a lot.

Now, we transform that big, smelly pile of garbage into laughter, education, and advocacy.

Will Flanary creates medical-themed comedy shorts for an audience of over 4 million across social media as "Dr. Glaucomflecken."

Kristin Flanary (Lady Glaucomflecken) teaches healthcare workers about the patient and family experience and advocates for caregivers and co-survivors, CPR and AED use, and sudden cardiac arrest survivorship.
